Stolen Team Mystery.

A man giving his name as Joe White, with a team last week at a livery stable at Mexico. The team not being returned as agreed it was suspected that something was wrong. Investigation showed that the man had driven through to Rumford, stopping at various places along the route; trying to sell or trade the team. Among others he tried to sell the rig to H. E. & E. E. Andrews.

The plan was unsuccessful until he reached Mechanic Falls, where the team was swapped at Jim Grant's stable. Deputy Sheriff Perkins got the Mexico man's team there but at the present time the whereabouts of the man and Grant's team is unknown.

The latest news are that Grant's wagon and harness were found by the roadside and the horse in a near by pasture, about four miles this side of Lewiston. The man has not been located.

The Shoe Foreman Win.

On Saturday afternoon, the B. F. Spinney & Co. foremen crossed bats for the second time this summer with the United Shoe Machinery agents at Auburn. The foremen by brilliant stick work and snappy fielding administered a most decided defeat to their Auburn opponents. Mr. Bradley was much missed in the line-up of foremen.

A great deal of credit should go to Mr. Shepard, whose superb and masterly twirling proved to be too much of a puzzle for the Auburn boys to solve. He struck out fourteen men in all and fielded his position in major league style. He was also fast on bases. Mr. Buckley distinguished himself at the bat, driving out a hot liner which netted two runs.

The United Shoe men entertained their opponents in fine style. No better treatment could possibly been tendered the Spinney foremen than that accorded them by their defeated rivals. While the game was in progress a band, got up for the occasion, dispersed notes of enchantment, which made the players (ball players) stand spellbound in their tracks and caused the branches overhead to shake as in palsy.

After the game a handsome bouquet valued at $250 and representing nearly every state in the union, was presented to Mr. Sargent as the Supt. and representative of B. F. Spinney & Co., by Mr. Littlefield, who made a very appropriate presentation speech. The occasion will remain a pleasant memory. Score:

Broken "Y" on Water Main.

To appreciate public utilities you should be deprived of them for a while. The fakers of city water were deprived of water for about 24 hours this week and the lamentation and kicking was universal.

The "Y" in the water main at the upper pumping station broke and necessitated the shutting down of the pumps and consequently a water famine struck the two villages. The street sprinkler didn't operate and dust was in abundance; fires were pulled from the "water front" cook stoves, and spring water was in great demand, and everything except praise was heard of the Norway Water Co.'s service—all for a day over an accident.

The officers of the Water Company did all they could and as quickly as they could to repair the break but the thoughtlessly unkind words were numerous and amusing. Few really meant what they said. This shut-down coming so close on the recent one caused by cleaning out and repairing the reservoir, made many of the takers of water ill natured and big was the knocking and kicking.

A "Y" is on the way here and the break will be repaired as quickly as possible, and in the intervening time watertakers will have to be patient and economize on the use of water.

NOTICE TO WATER TAKERS.

Commencing Friday morning the water will be shut off during the repairs on the main.

The reservoir is full of water and can be used in case of an emergency.

Episcopal Picnic.

Saturday afternoon at Penley's grove the guild of Church Workers, the Young People's guild and the Children of Mercy held a very enjoyable picnic. A number of games and contests were heartily played. The winners in the contests were awarded excellent prizes.

Anna Brooks won the sack race; Master Paul Brooks, the horseshoe game; Stella Records, the guessing on the burning candle; Master Winifred Frost, the potato race. The baseball game was a special feature.

Plenty of ice cream, cake and lemonade were served during the day. All voted it a most delightful picnic in spite of the rain which began early in the afternoon.

CATTLE FAIR DAILY

We shall issue a Daily during Cattle Fair, Sept. 17, 18, and 19, as usual.

Advertising Rates the same as in years past. Call on or address ADVERTISER, NORWAY, ME.

The ladies of the Congregational society are requested to meet at the church vestry, Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, for the transaction of business.

Road commissioner George Wood has had a ditch dug along side the walk across Bridge street bridge so as to drain off the water that usually stands here.

Dr. Harry P. Jones was among the number from here that attended the banquet of Bethany Commandery of Lawrence, Mass., at Peaks Island, Monday.

The new books purchased some time ago for the public library have arrived and been placed in the library. Also those sent away to be repaired have been received.

Rev. E. S. Cotton's sermon at the M. E. church, last Sabbath morning, was enjoyed very much, and a union service was held at the Baptist church in the evening with good attendance.

Chas. Locke and Sampson Scribner are repairing the John Cummings blacksmith shop on Bridge street. The shop is occupied by Oscar I. Pitts and is owned by C. B. Cumming & Sons.

Mrs. George Wise and son, Ted, of Auburn visited at S. C. Foster's over Sunday. Mrs. Wise' daughter, Marion, has been at Mr. Foster's several days and will make a visit of a few weeks.

Most of the Norway schools will probably open Sept. 23, the week after the fair, as the children all plan to attend the fair and it is hard for the teachers to hold their attention during fair week.

C. S. and V. M. Akers took a trip over the White mountains last week from Berlin down Tuckerman's ravine. They stopped one night at the Madison hut. There were 40 people there that night, which broke all previous records of accommodations.

There will be general class meeting at the Methodist vestry, Friday evening, and next Sabbath will open regular work again. All members and friends of the church are expected to the services, and a great rally back to the Sunday school.

Rev. C. A. Brooks and family returned home, Monday night, from Poland campground, where they have been stopping for two weeks. Over seventy-five from Norway attended some part of the campmeeting, and many report what wonderful services were held, with large attendance the last day; and only eternity will reveal the number of conversions, but the great spiritual uplift to the churches must be felt all over the district.

Norway Municipal Court.

Officer George F. Hathaway arrested John Currier Saturday evening. He was much the worse for liquor and made quite a disturbance. Currier was placed in the lock-up but got out during the night and was re-arrested Sunday night at the Howland Stock Farm at South Paris, and placed in jail. Monday morning he was brought into court. Sentenced to pay $3 and costs, which he paid and was discharged.

Saturday night the Fuller block across the street from the saw-mill on Pleasant street was searched by the officers on a search and seizure warrant but nothing was found.

Mrs. Sarah Crosby.

The death of Mrs. Sarah Crosby occurred on Saturday. She was the daughter of Lucinda and John Proctor and was born in Waterford. She was 79 years, 9 months and 15 days old.

Mrs. Crosby had been married twice, first to John C. Eastman of Lovell, April 19, 1853. Two children were born. She married Truman Crosby, Mar. 29, 1865, by whom she had one son.

Besides other relatives two brothers and two sisters mourn her loss, Mrs. Harriet B. Hutchinson, Bethel, Mrs. Maria Barker, Portland; P. B. Proctor, Waterford, and Henry Proctor, Norway.

The funeral was held on Tuesday from the house on Marston street attended by Rev. C. A. Brooks, pastor of the Methodist church of which she was a member. Burial at Waterford. Relatives and friends brought many beautiful floral offerings.

Holden Family Reunion.

The fifth annual reunion of the descendants of the late David Ray and Louisa (Lovejoy) Holden was held Aug. 21 at the old home site on Crooked River Owing to the weather the attendance was rather smaller than usual.

Granville Fernald of South Waterford, a cousin of the late David R. Holden, and Mr. Fernald's nephew, Arthur C. Fernald of West Medford, Mass., were among those present.

After a basket picnic the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Pres.—Henry O. Holden.
1st V. Pres.—Josephine Holden.
2nd V. Pres.—Deborah F. Hill.
3d V. Pres.—Esther M. Cushman.
Rec. Sec.—Della E. Giles.
Assist. Rec. Sec.—Alfred A. Everett.
Treas.-Cor. Sec.—Chester O. Holden.
Assist. Treas.-Cor. Sec.—Florence E. Gurney.
Com. on Entertainment—Herman L. Hill, chairman, Paul R. Holden, Lewis Merrill.

Birthday Party.

Monday afternoon, Aug. 26, sixteen of Clara O. Burgess' friends gave her a surprise party, it being her eleventh birthday.

After a very pleasant time passed in outdoor games, refreshments of fancy cakes, cocoa and fruit were served. They all returned home wishing her many happy returns and each leaving a token of friendship.

Dinner Party at Sunnyside.

At Dr. H. P. Jones' cottage, Sunnyside, Mrs. George W. Holmes gave a dinner party, Saturday, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Sandbrook of Salmon Falls, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Holmes. Over forty invitations were issued but some were unable to attend. Dinner was served at five o'clock and an enjoyable time was had.

Advertised Letters, Norway.

Mrs. Lydia S. Dearborn, Miss S. F. King.
Mae Lawrence (2) E. C. Rowe,
Horace Andrews, Mgr.-Olympia Stock Co.

Norway Grange has voted not to exhibit at the fair this year.

Lillian Palmer has been visiting her father, Noah H. Palmer of Center Lovell.

Elden Stevens camped on Stoneham mountains several days the first of the week.

Jason Rowe and wife returned first of the week from a trip to Rochester, N. H., and Westbrook.

Samuel Moore and family returned to their home, Tuesday, after a week at Pine Lodge by the lake.

Mrs. Merton A. Kilgore and daughter from North Newry visited at C. E. Russell's the past week. Mrs. Kilgore left on Saturday for Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cox attended the reunion of the 32nd Maine Regiment at Wayland, Dustan Corner, and visited the ruins of the fire at Old Orchard.

S. D. Andrews and Belle Whitcomb, daughter of W. H. Whitcomb, who was interested with Mr. Andrews in a water system at Oconta, Wis., left Monday evening for that city. They expect to be gone about two weeks.

Jesse Allard and Howard Moulton took a trip to Portland and Lewiston, Saturday. This was the only day that they were away from home this year during vacation. The balance of the time was spent in attending to the improvements they are making at their Pike's hill residence. They have their lawn graded and stone steps put in, and other improvements made. Have also improved the appearance and convenience of the spring in the ledge by the roadside by building a house over it and putting in two tubs.

Mrs. Jesse K. Brown shows us a perfectly preserved Hubbard squash eleven years old. That is it grew that number of years ago. She is moving from the house on the island, which was recently sold to Charles Holt of Waterford to her daughter's house at Steep Falls. Her daughter is Mrs. Hattie Knight. She and her husband some time ago bought a two acre lot of Jason Rowe at the Falls and she is building a house on it. The house is 12x24, 12 foot post and is up and boarded in. The lot has been divided and Jesse owns half and she the other half. The house is being built on her lot. They got $300 for their island home.

Fore Street.

Eva Fields and sister visited friends here last week.

Several of the young people of Fore street attended the campmeeting at Mechanic Falls, Sunday.

Beatrice Stevens, who has been helping Mrs. E. E. Twitchell for several weeks, has returned to her home in Norway.

Mrs. E. J. Twitchell, who had the misfortune to fall and break her hip bone last Wednesday, is as comfortable as possible. Her sister, Mrs. Ella Sweetsir, is helping to care for her.

Oxford Pomona Field Day.

Annual field day meeting of the Oxford Pomona Grange was held at the Norway Opera House, Friday, August 23. Chas. S. Edmunds, master, had charge and introduced the speakers. Prof. A. A. Towne and Prof. Verne Whitman furnished music.

Hon. M. L. Merrill of St. Albans was the first speaker. Mr. Merrill has been chairman of the State Grange legislative committee since its organization. He spoke of what the Grange has accomplished in the way of legislation and what it proposes to attempt hereafter.

After dinner the master of Ohio State Grange, Hon. F. A. Derthink, spoke for nearly two hours on National Grange issues. He spoke also of the parcels post, postal savings banks, national aid to build highways and other measures intended to help farmers. Mr. Derthink is a forceful and interesting speaker.

The attendance was not large but the meeting proved very interesting and profitable. State Master Gardner was present but made only a few remarks.

Mrs. Abigail Stone.

Mrs. Abigail Stone, wife of the late Josiah Stone, died Monday at the home of her son, O. L. Stone, on Tucker street. She was the daughter of Sarah Jane Banks and Daniel Pike and was born in Buxton, Nov. 5, 1831.

She was married Sept. 7, 1860, to Josiah Stone. They had three children, Mrs. Marcia Ella Henry, Rumford Falls, Mary Abbie Stone and Orin Lincoln Stone of Norway. Mr. Stone's death occurred a few months ago. They had been residents of Norway for about 12 years.

Mrs. Stone had ten brothers and sisters and two brothers are now living, James Pike of Marshfield, Mass., and Charles Pike, who resides on the old home place at Buxton.

The funeral was held from the home of her son, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, attended by Rev. C. A. Brooks. Burial at Riverside cemetery, South Paris. Many beautiful flowers were received.

The funeral of Rose May, the little nine months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gammon, took place Saturday afternoon attended by Rev. J. H. Little.

Mr. and Mrs. Warne and Mrs. Cleveland of Lynn, Mass., are at the Parsons farm. Mrs. Hagan, who has been at Lynn during the winter, has also returned.

A petition is being circulated and will be presented to the county commissioners at their next session, to be held Sept. 3, to make the road from South Paris to Paris hill a state road.

Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Billings, S. C. Burnell, Laura and Hattie Burnell, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Hall and family made up the picnic party that went to Biscoe Falls and had a delightful time, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Hathaway, Mr. and Mrs. Grinfill Stuart and W. Stuart attended the reunion of the 13th Maine Regiment at the Wayland, Dunstan corner, near Portland last week.

J. A. Kenney will soon be making apple barrels for this year's crop. He has also purchased the Littlehale saw mill at North Paris including all the privileges there, also the flowage of Moose pond and will run the mill.

Friday evening the Delta Alphas will take a straw ride to Stearns hill and visit Grace Dudley, one of the members of the society. A supper will be served and a fine evening's entertainment has been arranged.

Water Supply.

Several propositions are under consideration for a water supply for South Paris. A survey has recently been made of Hall pond which supplies Hebron Academy, and it is thought that it might also be sufficient for the supply here. The springs in the Whittemore district on the road from Paris hill to Buckfield have also been examined. There is an abundant flow of nice pure water there, and this seems to be a favorable proposition with many. The distance would be about four miles and operated by the gravity sytem.

Paris Schools.

Schools are expected to begin Monday, Sept. 1, except Pleasant street primary and Tuell which begin Sept. 9 and Forbes, Tuesday, Sept. 10. List of teachers:

ACHED IN EVERY BONE.

Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

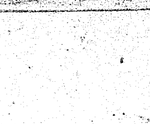

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and bearing-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 33 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had intense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $6 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

How We Do Change.

O, the dear old swimming hollow!
It was there we used to wallow
In an unhygienic pool of brackish ooze,
Whilst the insects stung like fury
And a self-appointed jury
Tied our clothing into knots and hid our shoes.
There were lots of bottles busted;
There were piles of tin cans rusted;
There were heaps of deadly junk on every hand;
And it makes me weak and chilly
As I think of the bacilli.
How we dodged 'em I shall never understand.

The Marriage License.

You got back, massa, from de town?
You fetch my ma'yage license down?

Dat's a pity massa, 'caze you see
Since you been gone I change my min'
And conclude I'll marry Adeline—
Des you take dem license and change de name—
And lemme ma'y on 'em all de same.
You can't do dat? Cost me two dollars mo'?
Oh, no, sah, massa! No, sah, no!
Des leave de name dat's writ dar Sal's
'Caze dar ain't two dollars diffunce 'twixt dem gals!

Silas M. Locke.

Although a quiet man, almost every body about here knows Silas M. Locke, but not as many know that he has quite a record as a killer of bears. He has 51 bears to his credit to say nothing of those he has assisted in capturing.

In his young manhood he was a photographer in the city, but indoor life did not agree with him, so he went to the town of Roxbury for his health. He lived in that town for more than 20 years and became a very prominent citizen. He served the town as selectman, was postmaster, newspaper correspondent and land surveyor. He wished to be out of doors, so he went to farming.

Now bears, up in Roxbury, love mutton, and are very troublesome to farmers; and it was because of that that Mr. Locke became a bear hunter. Bears are declared a public nuisance by the State of Maine which give a bounty of $5.00, on each one killed and at the same time Roxbury gave a bounty of $2 00 for each one killed.

Bears being thus declared outlaws were not only hunted but trapped. A bear is very inteligent and it took some considerable skill to so place a trap as to lure him into it; and he was an ugly customer to meet when he realized it was simply selling his life as dearly as could. They were very strong, and the amount of damage one could do, even when clogged with a trap was almost past comprehension.

Mr. Locke once showed the writer a section of a yellow birch tree about 6 inches in diameter that had been entirely twisted off by a bear in his rage. It was in 1877 that Mr. Locke got his first bear and it was in 1897 that he got his last one. These bears were of all sizes from cubs to one that weighed about 400 pounds. These bears were all black, but nearly every one of them had a white spot in its throat.

Mr. Locke never was injured in hunting bears, but he once came near enough to one so that he sent out his challenging snarl. One morning on arising he found that a bear had killed one of his best sheep and so he started in pursuit. It was an all day tramp, and at nightfall he came upon old bruin in the underbrush and he snarled at him. He could not get a good shot there, so he shifted his ground before he fired and only succeeded in wounding him. As it was dark he left off pursuit, but the body of the bear was afterwards found not a great way off.

Mr. Locke has an interesting relic of his hunting days in the shape of a polished claw, set in gold, to be worn as a watch-charm.—[Ledger.

NORTH PARIS.

Madge Tuell of West Paris, visited Grace and Melba Graves at Elm Rest, Saturday and Sunday.

The Rev. Seth Benson and wife spent last Wednesday with Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Graves at Elm Rest cottage.

A. T. Silver of Bryant Pond has finished cutting the hay on the Benson farm, now owned by Chester Beckler.

Mrs. Cora E. Benson and little grandson of Swampscott, Mass., will spend the next two weeks at Elm Rest with Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Graves.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Dunham, have left for a few weeks' outing at Wells Beach. C. P. Dunham will take charge of his father's store during his absence.

Grace Graves visited Mrs. Emma Barrett at East Sumner for a few days. Edith Barrett returned to Elm Rest with Grace Graves for a week's visit.

George W. Walker of Boston has returned to Elm Rest and has invited D. B. Graves to accompany him to the Four Ponds as his guest where they will spend next week.

Provincialism.

One of the chief advantages to be gained from a liberal education is the removal of narowing barriers and the uprooting of home prejudices. The pious and selfish old soul who prayed that his immediate own should be guarded and cared for in the following words:

"God bless me and my wife,
My son John and his wife;
Us four,
And no more. Amen."

That narrow old soul stood for the prejudice of ignorance and the conceit of provincialism.

Often in scanning the town or city columns of the family newspaper we find the correspondent has told all about the goings and comings and doings of those who are of his own nume and kin, of those who belong to his church and his lodge and his grange: and while meaning well by so doing, he has been very unjust to all who do not move in the charmed circles of the correspondent's personal knowledge. Education gets us out of these confining ruts and makes us cosmopolitan.

And in our studying, let us study earnestly to get away from provincialism and parochialism.—Bangor Daily News.

Do Hornpouts "Hook" Pickerel?

It is a well-known fact that the pickerel that inhabit Umbagog lake are dying off rapidly. One man who is familiar with the lake advances the theory that they are being killed by hornpouts and this in a very peculiur way. This man says there are millions of hornpouts in Umbagog, that the pickerel devour them. He says the "horns" on hornpouts are always straightened when the fish is in trouble and that this causes the death of the pickerel, that they are "hooked to death," so to speak. —[Maine Woods.

A Pleasant Vacation.

I left my home in Bryant Pond on the morning of July 1st, and visited friends in Boston and East Dedham, Mass.

From Boston I took the boat Ontario to Norfolk, Va., this was a sail of two nights and one and one-half days and we arrived at Norfolk at 7.30, July 4, and took the electrics to Jamestown, twelve miles from Norfolk City.

While there is much to see at Jamestown one cannot but feel sorry that things are so unfinished as such historical grounds should have been made a grand success, but they told us it was largely due to lack of funds as well as a scarcity of help as the colored people will not work. I went to Richmond, Va., and from there to Washington, then to Cumberland, Md., and from there on to Davis, W. Va., to visit my daughter, Mrs. A. J. Wilson, Jr. I spent several pleasant weeks with her and friends there, then went with her and her family to Mr. Wilson's home near Oakland, Md. His home is on an old Southern plantation and there is still an aged, intelligent, fair-minded Southerher, Abe Wilson, at his old home, who without prejudice or malice gives many interesting facts concerning the Civil War. He is 92 years old, was a wealthy cattle owner at the time, and had many narrow escapes from the enemy and great loss of property.

While here I visited Mountain Lake Park, Md. This is a beautiful summer resort 2,800 feet above sea level, with many nice cottages and hotels, it also has a Chautanqua Session which offers a feast of good things. It has an auditorium which seats 5,000, a tabernacle seating 2,000 and a splendid amphitheater which seats 5,000. It was here that Dr. Talmage gave his last Chautanqua lecture.

Here we listened to a "travel" lecture by Miss Cook of Pennsylvania, who discribed the pyramids of Egypt as she saw them last summer, and we held in our hands a piece of Egyptian stone which came from off a "Sphinx" said to be 6,000 years old.

We went to Deer Park, Md, another beautiful resort, and from there started eastward. I visited my daughter, Mrs. A. B. Atwood, at Hotel Miramonte in the White Mountains and from there came back home.

Davis, W. Va., is a plateau in the Alleghanies 3,300 feet above sea level. It was the home or the young Mr. Thompson, who now lies in the mausoleum in South Paris cemetery, at the time of his death, and for many years A. Thompson or Dr. Thompson, as he is better known here, whose summer home is at Norway, Maine, carried on an extensive lumber business there but he has recently sold to the Babcock Boom and Lumber Co., of Davis, W. Va. For some years it was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blake whose old home was in Norway, Maine, but who now reside in Philadelphia.

My trip took me through fourteen states and altogether it was a most delightful trip and being the fifth one to that section, I have formed many pleasant friendships which distance or time cannot efface.

Mrs. Edward Thompson.

The Paragraph Pulpit.

BY EDWIN A. RUMBALL.

"If a man die shall he live again?" For the next two or three weeks I shall say some few things on immortality, and any conclusions that are drawn should be taken from all, not unfairly from one paragraph.

The interest in immortality is not as great as is sometimes supposed. The vast majority of men do not think of it as a fact but only receive it in a religious sense. The average man of western civilization has little in common with spiritism, and for this reason such a cult will never be universal with us.

Belief in immortality is not at all necessary to have a happy life here. Let us suppose for a moment that there is no such thing as an after life, that death ends all, the very worst thing we should look forward to would be extinction. There are actually thousands of weary men and women today who peacefully look forward to this, to whom the thought of the Christian's heaven is unbearable. Annihilation can be to many minds a very pleasant thing to look forward to. In a poem called "Browning's Funeral," Mrs. Huxley has written:

"And if there be no meeting past the grave,
If all is darkness, silence—yet, 'tis rest,
Be not afraid, ye waiting hearts that weep,
For God still giveth his beloved sleep,
And if an endless sleep he wills, so best."

Next week we will answer the question: Is it necessary to believe in immortality in order to be good?

HARBOR.

W. S. Leavitt was here this week and cut his hay.

The post-office here will be discontinued the 30th, we understand.

Agnes Davis is visiting her father and other relatives at North Conway.

Mr. Coburn, who is stopping at Chatham, is preaching here for a time.

Charlie Gains is camping at Lake Kezar with his friend, Herman Merrill.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Kimball of Lovell visited at W. E. Benson's, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. George Sawyer of West Bridgton visited their son, Chester, Sunday.

Prof. Dennis M. Cole of Westfield, Mass., has been visiting his brother, C. H. Cole.

Mrs. Abbie Waterhouse and Agnes Davis spent a day recently with Mrs. E. L. Walker, West Fryeburg.

BUCKFIELD.

Streaked Mountain.

Arthur Sturtevant is working for Ellis Whitman.

Benj. Turner is at work haying for D. S. Turner.

Benjamin Maxim is staying at Mrs. Seiberling's.

The neighbors had a bee and cut Lorena Winslow's hay.

George Lewis had his horse killed recently. He thinks it had the glands.

Alice Taylor and Mrs. Seiberling are picking blueberries for Clifton Churchill.

D. S. Turner and wife attended the funeral of Arad Jordan of West Auburn, last week.

"Fine place you got here," remarked the passer-by, as he cast his eyes up and down the lawn and across the flower border and garden. "Yes," replied the former owner carelessly, "but it takes some work to do it—good many folks can have a 'fine place' if they work for it."

Mined Their Own Salt--Grape Shot Just Cleared the Tops of Their Heads--Some of the Darkies Followed the Army--Torn to Pieces by Dogs--Man's Inhumanity to Man.

Where we had to cross country where water was scarce from one bayou to another there was much suffering from heat and thirst. The thought of a good, cool drink of water from the old well away up in Maine did not help me at all, if anything it was an aggravation.

Gen'l Banks could not help seeing that his orders to stop killing animals hadn't amounted to anything, so he issued another one, which was read to all the regiments one morning before setting out, and the penalty was that any soldier seen killing any animal or entering any building for plunder should be arrested and sent back to New Orleans, and there set to cleaning the streets with a placard fastened on his back bearing the word "Marauder."

That order was wholly ignored as the others had been, for at the first opportunity nearly the whole army struck out with their guns, and for a few minutes the musketry rattled as though a battle was being fought. That was the last attempt at trying to keep the soldiers from getting what meat they wished to eat, but the order against entering buildings to plunder was strictly obeyed.

It was, I think, the twenty-fourth of April that we made the longest march of any one day. After marching twenty miles our regiment was sent off to the left on a road leading to a salt mine ten miles further on, with orders to destroy or obstruct its being worked, to prevent the enemy from obtaining salt there. At the end of the thirty mile march we were ready to sing "Tom, Tom, the piper's son, aren't you mighty glad that your day's work's done?" and glad also of the ground on which to make a bed.

When morning came we found the salt mine to be a deep hole in the ground about six feet across where rock salt had been taken out. There was no way to destroy it. All we could do was to fill it up with whatever we could gather up about the place, and I guess the rebels didn't find the damage very extensive. However, we provided ourselves with salt and thereafter our fresh meat was relished some better.

There were buildings not far away but the only person we saw was a mulatto so peculiar in looks that I have never been able to forget him. His hair was light, his eyes blue, his nose flat, lips thick, and his skin like Jacob's kine, "ring-streaked, speckled and spotted."

A few rods back of the salt mine was a knoll, or hillock, containing an acre or two of land, the first hill I had seen since leaving New England. It looked so homelike that I could not resist the temptation to visit it. To add to my pleasure, strawberries were ripening there, "turning their red'ning cheeks to the sun;" and both taste and smell seemed to bring back to me the happy hours of childhood in my far away Northern home.

"In the old-time summer day
Cheerily we took our way
To the fair knolls where we knew
Ripe and luscious strawberries grew,
Nodding on their bending stems
With the glow of garnet gems."

Our stop was short at the salt mine for we had to make quick time to catch up with the main column, which had slacked some in its movement for our benefit. It seemed that the rebels didn't try to gain for we were soon up with them.

As we went further north the ground became more uneven, and in the section about Cheneyville there were slight rises of land, yet not what we call hills here. Near the road in a forest we found a good place to get water, and the order came to "Break ranks! and take a few minutes' rest." The rebels stopped also and turned their guns upon us, and bursting shells and screeching bullets made things lively for a few minutes, and some of our men were killed and some wounded.

One young fellow not over sixteen years old was mortally wounded in the pit of the stomach and suffered such intense agony that he begged of his comrades to kill him, but of course he had to live until the suffering wore him out. It was heart-rending to hear his cries.

The rebels did not appear to wish to risk another battle with us, for they fled as soon as we began to show fight.

The next day our regiment was placed at the head of the column and marched "left" in front, my position then being in the front file. We were marching up an incline in the road, where just ahead over the brow of the hill the ground fell off abruptly, and there the rebels had placed a cannon intending to mow a swath through our ranks as soon as we had advanced far enough to bring us in range. Lucky for us they were in such a hurry to get out of there that they fired their gun about two seconds too soon to hit us. The grape-shot just cleared the tops of our heads.

That was a "close call" and it has always been a wonder to me how they happened to make the mistake, for they would have had plenty of time to have made their escape had they waited longer but they "legged it" in a hurry for some distance after that.

Many of the negroes who joined us at starting had become discouraged and fallen out, but the recruits from day to day kept the number about the same right along.

One woman, carrying a pack on her back and leading a little black, bow-legged boy by the hand, followed us day after day, certainly as much as seventy-five miles before they gave out. There was no way for them to do but to return to their "Old Cabin Home," and take a whipping perhaps after their long, weary journey.

As we passed one plantation five or six negroes with packs on their backs stepped into the rear and followed on. One soldier said to them, "Where are you going?"

The answer was "We'se gwine long o' you! We'se gwine hang to your coat-tails! We'se gwine be free!"

Poor fellows! they didn't know what was best for them. A large part of the slaves had the good sense to stay on the plantations until the war closed; and in some cases were so attached to the families of their masters that they remained with them even after that.

On approaching another plantation we saw a group of slaves standing by the garden gate, among them a fellow and girl whose faces showed mixed blood. He held a bundle in one hand, the other clasped a hand of the dusky maiden, and she was pleading earnestly for him to stay, but to no purpose. He kissed her "good-bye" and came on. The separation seemed to be hard for her to bear, for she covered her face with her hands and cried bitterly. He turned his head for a last look but his resolute appearance seemed to say, "I am going to be free and make a home of my own!" As he walked near me, I asked if the girl he kissed was his sweetheart. "No," said he, "she is my sister."

Soon we filed out into a field and stacked arms for a few hours' rest. It was not far to the planter's house and with some of my comrades I went over there in search of water, and we were pleased to find the first well of good water that we had seen in Louisiana. We drank our fill with thankful hearts. Only one negro was to be seen about the premises, a man about forty years of age and very badly crippled. "What makes you so lame and bent over?" I asked.

"Dogs bit me!" was the answer.

"How did that happen?" said I.

"Well," said he, "I wanted to be free, an' one night I started to run away; but Mas'r put de dogs on my track an' got me before I had been gone long. Mas'r an' de man dat owned de dogs made me go back, and oh, dey whipped me so, de lash cut right troo de skin! But I couldn't be contented, I wanted to be free, an' thought dat by walking in de water all I could, would keep de dogs from finding my tracks, an' dey wouldn't catch me again; so one night I started for de nearest creek an' walked in de water as far as I could, den started across through de fields an' woods; but in spite of keeping in de water all I could de dogs followed me an' I heard dem barking on my trail. I climbed a tree an' soon de whole pack of hounds were under dat tree, barking an' looking up at me. Soon de owner ob de dogs an' ole Mas'r came in sight an' when dey got to de tree Mas'r tole me to come down. I tole him I would if he wouldn't let de dogs bite me, an' he said if I didn't come down he would shoot me. I tole him I'd rather be shot than killed by de dogs. Den he said he wouldn't let de dogs bite me if I would come down, an' I tole him to call de dogs away from de tree an' I would come down. Den he called dem away, but as soon as I struck de groun' ole Mas'r said, 'Set the dogs on him!' An' de owner snapped de whip an' de whole pack o' houn's jumped on to me and began to tear me to pieces. When dey had nearly killed me Mas'r said, 'Call them off!' an' de owner snapped de whip again, an' de dogs left me, an' I was brought back here again."

Those are, as near as I can remember, the words of the old negro, and when he undressed and showed me the great scars on his person I fully believed in what he said. He was a very pleasant, mild mannered man, and when pointing out and describing the great wounds on different parts of his body he would laugh, "Ah! ha! ha! how dey did bite!" Pieces of flesh had been taken right out of his legs and thighs. His back was lacerated in such a way that it caused curvature of the spine. He was a pitiful object, so crippled and bent out of shape.

"You see dat camp down dar?" said he, pointing to a low, one-roofed shed about ten feet square and five feet high in front lowering to three at the back, "I stayed in dar fifteen years an' wore a ball an' chain on both ankles!" The scars on his ankles were proof of that. How he must have suffered while his wounds were healing. Whether it was in the cool of winter or the intense heat of summer that board shack was no protection from rain nor sun, and wouldn't be considered a fit place in which to keep a dog here in our village. And that was his punishment for wishing to be free. It seemed strange to me that in a Christian country, and in a so called enlightened age, there could be such examples of "man's inhumanity to man."

The name of that parish has gone from my memory. Perhaps some of my comrades can recall it. I was told that Harriet Beecher Stowe gathered the material for the story of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" there. It might have been on that same plantation. Theodore Roosevelt is credited with having said this—"It is an immutable law of the spiritual world that no one can wrong another, and yet in the end himself escape unhurt."

TREATMENT OF FINE RUGS.

How to Keep Them In Good Condition.

George Leland Hunter gives the following instructions of interest to all good housekeepers in an article entitled "The Truth About 'Doctored' Rugs" in Country Life In America for July:

"The care of a fine rug is everything Just as thoroughbred racers have luxury and affection lavished upon them, so thoroughbred rugs should be treated gently and tenderly. The broom should be used daily on them, and they should be swept with the nap. Every third day, after the sweeping, sawdust that has been slightly moistened should be sprinkled over the rug, which should then be gone over with a carpet sweeper. Be careful to have the sweeping precede the application of sawdust, as otherwise the moisture will turn some of the dust into mud that, caking itself in the threads, will ravel the fibers. Once each week rugs should be taken out on the lawn, spread out face down and then gently tapped—gently, mind—with a flat rattan beater.

Fine rugs, like razors—and people, too—require rest. By no means leave rugs in use during the summer. When the warm weather approaches have them taken up, carefully cleaned and sent to cold storage. The process of cleaning as practiced by experts is as follows: First all the dust is removed by the vacuum system; then the rug is spread on its face, liquid olive oil soap is poured over the back, and it is gently rubbed with a brush until a fine lather forms. Then the same thing is done to the face of the rug. After that warm water is played over the rug until it revives. After the hot shower, of course, a cold shower follows, and for about an hour on a concrete floor that slants slightly cold water runs over the surface of the rug from sprinklers. Then, in order to take the water out, the rug is rolled with the nap, a light wooden roller being the tool employed. After which the rug is spread out on the roof, face up, for three clear days and nights. When the sunlight has remove the last vestige of moisture the r is rolled up with the nap and is ready for storage."

How to Clean Hair Combs.

Combs should never be washed, but they may be cleaned by brushing and by pulling a piece of cotton through the teeth, changing it as it becomes soiled. Finally, rub well with a clean cloth.

How to Thread Bead Necklaces.

Women are rethreading the old bead necklaces they have found hoarded in their jewelry cases and are separating each colored bead by a narrow one of sparkling crystal. What to thread the necklace upon is a mooted point, says the Boston Traveler. Do not be inveigled by those who tell you that waxed thread is satisfactory for the purpose into giving the story credit. For beads that are in the least heavy it is most unsatisfactory and leads to a breakage after the necklace has been worn once or twice. The best threading medium to choose is a violin string, and if the "E" string be asked for it will be found fine enough and strong enough to suit all purposes.

Clean Streets Advertise a Town.

Filthy streets and impure water supply was the burden of the report of City Engineer C. B. Cooke of Wheeling, W. Va. He said that town could not be proud of the condition of its streets, and a town cannot keep its streets clean by doing the work by spurts, but it must be done systematically and constantly. If the streets were in better condition it would be easier to keep them clean. The town should have a modern street sweeper, and the paved streets should be constantly washed with hose. Clean streets are one of the best advertisements a town could have.

Excellent Advice to Heed.

EDITOR NORWAY ADVERTISER:

Dear Sir.—On my return from my annual vacation trip a few days since, I found on my desk quite a quantity of accumulated correspondence, among which was a bill (the first I have seen) for subscription to the ADVERTISER for four months. While trying to take up this matter in order I was a little surprised last evening to receive another letter from you containing direful threats of things to come to your humble servant if a certain amount of his lucre (namely 50 cts.) was not forthcoming instanter.

It also impressed me that I had carelessly and thoughtlessly but believe me without malice aforethought caused ye Editor great mental distress and worry of mind for which I should make amends. Therefore I will enclose a money order for 50 cts., yes, I will add another dollar, making $1.50, hoping it will help to grease the wheels and make them "go round" again.

Now, Mr. Editor, please keep your shirt on, take some of the spikes from your boots when you jump on old subscribers and you will live longer, die happier and have more friends.

You may continue to send the ADVERTISER if you can do so without too much mental worry about the subscription price. Send in your bill the first of the year for the full year and wait until it has time to reach me and return, making allowance for a day or two in which I might be very busy or possibly away from home, before you have any more spasms like the last.

We've not a word to say, no excuses to make. We print it omitting the name, feeling it was lucky for us there were three thousand intervening miles between us when the two duns were received. When next this side the continent come in and have a cigar. EDITOR.

A Hair Dressing

If you wish a high-class hair dressing, we are sure Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, will greatly please you. It keeps the hair soft and smooth, makes it look rich and luxuriant, prevents splitting at the ends. And it keeps the scalp free from dandruff.

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's — Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

At the same time the new Ayer's Hair Vigor is a strong hair tonic, promoting the growth of the hair, keeping all the tissues of the hair and scalp in a healthy condition. The hair stops falling, dandruff disappears. A splendid dressing.

A Tribute of Praise.

Beautiful Summer Home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Parker on Lake Keoka, Waterford, and the Story of Some of Their Enjoyable Parties.

Lovely Keoka, o'er thy waters blue
I see on summer days a varied crew.
Some ply the oar, others with paddle skim,
Thy placid waves till evening shades are dim.

On the shore of this charming sheet of water, beloved by summer visitors for its silvery beaches, its shaded banks, and by the disciples of Isaac Walton for the home of the land-locked salmon and the gamey bass, nestling beneath the shade of luxuriant pines and sweet scented hemlocks lies the summer home of Chas. W. Parker of Brookline, Mass., the pioneer of cottage builders on the lake, and until now the only completed one. Fred Johnson, our amateur photographer, and an all around good fellow, has this summer erected the second one on the opposite shore from Mr. Parker's, which will be ready for occupancy the coming season.

It was a red letter day for Waterford when Camp Keoka opened its doors to receive its public-spirited proprietor and charming hostess. To say that their latch string is always out does not convey the whole truth, for it is well known that their doors like some Maine towns, which in spite of prohibitory laws are at all times kept open to receive their numerous and welcome guests.

On the occasion of the annual flotilla, which took place some two weeks since, Mr. Parker's house and grounds were beautifully illuminated, and as the boats and canoes passed his pier where the judges were seated the scene was one of great splendor. At its conclusion the young people had a hop in their commodius living room while the older ones were entertained by popular airs from the graphophone.

It has been Mr. Parker's annual custom upon the evening of our glorious Fourth to give a fine display of fireworks in the village, and the number assembled about Sadie Knight's store, opposite where the display is made, have amply attested their appreciation of the show itself, while applauding the generosity of the doner.

But Mr. Parker is by no means content to be simply a cottager, his ambition is more widely extended, for lo and behold the writer is informed that he proposes to become a farmer, having recently purchased the fifty-acre Ripley farm. Whether the new proprietor proposes to raise his own garden "sass," his "egg fruit" and his broilers," or whether it is his intention to erect a hotel at some future time upon the premises which command an extensive view of the country and lake, are secrets hidden behind the waistcoat of this farsighted gentlemen.

And now at the close of a delightful season of recreation, on Saturday evening last, Mr. Parker's daughter Darothy and her young lady guests, Ethel Anderson, Marjorie Parks and Marjorie Simes, gave a dancing party at Masonic Hall, where notwithstanding that the much needed rain was falling, there were nearly one hundred guests. Music was furnished by Jennie Hamlin, pianist, Walter Noble, cornetist, and Prof. Carpenter, violinist. A very pretty printed order of dances containing ten numbers and two extras was furnished by Mr. and Mrs. Parker.

Among those present from abroad were:

Prof. J. Blake Hillyer, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Mrs. Hillyer, " "
Prof. and Mrs. Williams, " "
Mrs. Alice E. Gould, " "
Ellison Hillyer, D.D.S., " "
Kenneth Hillyer, " "
Mr. and Mrs. Harnden, " "
Frank Harnden, M.D., " "
The Misses Brown, " "
The Misses Hope, " "
Miss Stratford, " "
May L. Davis, " "
Mr. Ewan, wife and daughter, Bloomfield, N.Y.
Mrs. and Miss Littig, New York.
Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Broom, son and daughter, Yonkers, N. Y.
Mrs. Wolfe, Malden, N.Y.
Gurde Wolfe, " "
Miss Moore, " "
Alice E. Stevens, Boston.
Geo. S. Pollard, Chatham, N. J.
Mr. and Mrs. Oliphant Gibbons, Philadelphia
Chester Clark, Boston.
Miss Ritchie, Morristown, N. J.
Miss T. A. Lutez, Newark, N. J.
Mrs. Starbird, Grace Starbird, Roxbury.
Mr. and Mrs. O. P. T. Wish, Portland.
Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Winchester, Boston.

The villagers were represented by

Col. and Mrs. Hapgood.
Sadie and Carrie Knight.
Mrs. Eugene M. Dudley.
Guy and Annie Dudley.
Charles Wilson.
Mrs. Morse and Charlotte Morse.
Rex Rounds and Miss Rounds.
Percy E. Kimball.

From South Waterford:

Mrs. Frank A. Noble.
Marguerite Briggs.
Florence M. Wood.
Dora M. Young.
Marion E. Noble.
Beulah Tenney.
Albert M. Hamlin.
Charlie A. Smith.

Enjoyment reigned supreme and the party was voted a grand success. Waterford has had its fall complement of visitors this season, and more would have chosen this delightful spot for their outing could accomodations have been obtained. The usual amusements have kept the young people busy from early morn to dewy eve.

Dr. Hillyer's picturesque and finely appointed boat house, completed this season, adds another beauty spot to the shore of Keoka, and the genial doctor has ever been foremost in the numerous sports.

WATERFORD.

Shedd Reunion.

The twenty-first reunion of the Shedd family was held Aug. 21 at the home of John Shedd, Waterford. Although each year we find our number smaller, nevertheless the enthusiasm to make it the most enjoyable day in the year does not diminish.

Story telling, music and eating seemed to be the great features of the event, and it is hard to say which one can eat the most or tell the biggest story, but each tries to excel the other. This day of all others is always too short.

Those present were John Shedd, his son Edgar and daughter Nettie; Lyman Shedd, wife and daughter Josephine, Harrison; J. R. Hall, Anna Fogg, Faith Anthoine, Cumberland Mills; Lelia Hutchins, daughter Velma, son Clayton, Deering; James Kimball and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wardwell, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Kimball and daughter Verna, Albany; Moses Kimball and wife, Norway; Gertrude Kimball, Waterford; Roy Kimball, Mary and Annie Kimball of Massachusetts; Freeman Hapgood and wife, Waterford.

Reluctantly we part, but hope to meet again in 1908.

Veteran's Reunion.

One hundred and twenty-four sat down to the dinner at the annual reunion of Co. F, 9th Maine, and Co. C, 8th Maine, veterans. The reunion was held at the home of Mrs. Rosetta Ryerson at West Sumner, Wednesday, Aug. 21. Dinner was served at the vestry under the Universalist church under the direction of Mrs. Ryerson and her boys. Six of the veterans of Co. F, 9th Maine, and four of Co. C, 8th Maine, were present with a large number of friends.

Before dinner the comrades enjoyed talking over old times. After dinner a business meeting in charge of Comrade Frank J. Brown was held, and following officers elected for the ensuing year:

Pres.—Frank J. Brown.
V. Pres.—J. A. Noyes, D. A. Rowe.
Sec.-Treas.—F. L. Wyman.

It was voted to hold the next reunion of the association with F. L. Wyman and family, Aug. 20, 1908.

After the business of the association was transacted all assembled in front of Mrs. Ryerson's house and a fine program of music, readings and remarks by the comrades was eagerly listened to. The choir sang that old war song, "Tenting tonight on the Old Camp Ground." Mrs. Annie Small gave a humorous reading in the role of Josiah Allen's wife, "Fair Jonesville on the Line." Alice Welcome gave two fine readings, one entitled, "The Sentinel on the Mentz." Frank Welcome and family furnished some fine music. One song entitled "How the Black Man Gets to Heaven" brought the house down.

The following comrades were voted in as honorary members: H. D. Irish and A. F. Warren of Buckfield, Joseph H. Dunham of North Paris, L. B. Heald, S. F. Stetson and Stephen C. Heald of Sumner.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Ryerson and family for fine entertainment. The program was closed by singing America. All felt that we had enjoyed one of the best reunions since the association was organized.

HARRISON.

Annual Field Day.

Crooked River Grange held its annual field day with Brother D. H. Caswell and wife at their beautiful cottage, "Lakeside," on the shore of Crystal lake.

The day was unpleasant and only a few assembled to enjoy the hospitality of our brother and sister, but those that were present were royally entertained and feel that everything was done for their pleasure and extend thanks to our Worthy Brother and Sister.

Mr. and Mrs. James McDermott of Lynn, Mass., who has been stopping for a few weeks with Mrs. McDermott's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Chute of Harrison, returned to their home, Sunday, the 25th. Mr. and Mrs. Chute accompanied them as far as Portland on their way to Alton Bay to visit their son, who is in business there.

Auto Accident.

Friday Mr. Cassidy, chauffeur for J. H. Dyer of the H. F. Webb Co., and Bernard French, son of D. M. French, also of the Webb company attempted to go up Pikes hill with Mr. Dyer's auto. They started with 450 pounds steam and all went well until they were near Eben Shackley's. The steam went down to 350 pounds and they stopped. When they started again reverse lever was worked by mistake which caused them to back into the ditch. Bernard jumped out Cassidy stayed in, the auto tipped over and he went in under. Bernard went for help. The boys were not hurt but the auto was pretty badly damaged.

Off for Ohio.

Saturday, the Maine military team left Portland for the Grand Tournament of riflemen at Camp Perry, Ohio. As announced, last week, seven men from Company D will participate in this shoot. Lieut. M. P. Stiles of Norway, team coach, gave up a chance to try for the all America team in order to stay at home and give his time to the men during the last week before the matches. Under his coaching the Norway men and Sergt. D. F. Christie of Co. F of the second have been working on the Norway range.

E. N. Swett is having a vacation from the shoe store.

The Mrs. Editor left, Saturday to visit at Meredith Center, N. H.

The brick sidewalk on Bridge street is being extended past the residence of W. W. Whitmarsh.

Roland S. Nevers and sister, Madeline, are visiting their grandparents at East Stoneham for week.

Holmes notes ten cents per dozen. Address the office not forgetting to enclose stamps or silver.

Mrs. S. R. Gilman of Exeter, N. H., is visiting Mrs. Elizabeth June Hutchins at William C. Leavitt's.

H. L. Horne and wife have spent a few days at Rumford Point visiting Capt. Hayes. They returned Wednesday.

A. J. Turner, the clock cleaner of Hebron after an absence of nearly two years, has returned to town. He boards at G. E. Bennett's.

Going to be married? We print wedding cards. Call and see samples. We also take orders for engraved cards at the ADVERTISER office.

Mrs. C. F. Cole and two daughters, Lydia and Mrs. Charles E. Putney, of Clairmont, N. H., visited her niece, Mrs. Percy H. Nevers, last week.

Arthur Hart, the apprentice boy sojourning with his mother and brother at Gloucester, Mass., sends us a post card and says he arrived there all right.

F. W. Sampson and wife of West Somerville, Mass., is visiting his brothers, John and Mell of this town. Mr. Sampson is motorman on the Boston Elevated.

Campmeeting at Poland closed on Sunday and those who attended from Norway have returned. Good weather, good attendance and excellent services is the report they bring.

Mrs. J. H. Fletcher entertained the King's Daughters in a very enjoyable manner at Camp Escuminock last week Thursday. After a row on the lake refreshments were served.

George E. Horr has been dining the past week on sweet corn from his garden. He has it in plenty, large, well-filled ears. We know whereof we speak for we tested it Friday.

Supt. C. H. Sargent, John C. Shepard and Ed. Kirwin went to Lewiston last Saturday to participate in a game of ball. They were taken there in an auto that was sent here from Lewiston for them.

Wm. C. Leavitt tells us that he has an excellent chance for some young man to learn the tin smith and hardware business. Why doesn't some young man grasp the chance and learn a good paying trade?

The first service since the summer vacation at the Baptist church was held Sunday evening, led by the pastor, Rev. E. S. Cotton. There was a good attendance and a very interesting meeting. The regular mid-week meeting was held Wednesday evening and all the regular services will be resumed on Sunday.

*Deceased.

Its first Master, Henry Farwell, was the first lawyer admitted to the Oxford county bar. The present officers of the lodge are:

M.—Harry R. Farris.
S. W.—H. F. Andrews.
J. W.—E. H. Allen.
Treas.—Lee M. Smith.
Sec.—H. D. Smith.
Ch.—A. J. Stearns.
S. D.—A. L. Proctor.
J. D.—J. C. Shepard.
S. S.—W. F. Tubbs.
J. S.—T. M. Coulton.
Mar.—E. F. Smith.
Org.—H. P. Jones.

No children under 14 are to be allowed in the hall, but members may bring relatives residing in their families. There is to be a big banquet followed by a program of interest to all Masons and their friends.

Members of the lodge who have gone away from Norway to live will make a great effort to be present.

Seventeen Masonic lodges in Maine have already passed the Century work.

H. P. Sawyer has taken the contract to paint the shoe factories. They will receive one coat of paint and work will commence the first of next month. Lead and oil will be used.

The Merry Eight club met with Mrs. L. H. Cushman Friday evening and observed the 25th wedding anniversary of Mrs. V. W. Hills. A banquet was held, the wedding cake being furnished by Mrs. E. F. Smith.

We visited Harrrison last Friday. Went there with V. W. Hills in his auto. Fifty minutes was used in going and coming. Horses are getting acquainted with "the red devils" and none were frightened that we met.

The foremen of the B. F. Spinney shoe company went to Auburn, Saturday as guests of the United Shoe Machinery Co., and defeated the latter in a six-inning ball game on the Fish Hatchery grounds, by a score of 8 to 4.

H. Walter Browne of the Novelty Turning Co. had the bottom of a ladder slide out from under him Friday and in the descent a bolt caught him on his left side making an ugly flesh wound. He quit work for a day or so, but is all right now.

Wm. C. Cole fell from the staging on Capt. F. C. Tribon's boat house last Friday and was badly shaken up. He received a bad scalp wound and one side the body was bruised. He was confined to the house several days under the care of a doctor.

The annual children's fair which is given by the young people staying at the hotels at Poland Spring was held, last week Thursday afternoon. This fair was one of a series in which money has been raised for the maintenance of the Hillside Sunday school. It was very successful, the receipts amounting to $500. It was held in the music hall of the Poland Spring House.

"Record-breaking sale," said box office agent Arthur Hebbard when questioned regarding the number of tickets sold for Quincy Adams Sawyer, Saturday evening. 'Twas true, too. The house was filled nearly to the limit. This very enjoyable play of real country life was presented in a first class manner. The scenery carried by this company is exceptionally good.

Walter C. Woodsum, son of Mrs. James Danforth, is visiting friends here. He has been here only once before in 14 years and it was six years ago when last here. For the past two years he has worked as locomotive engineer on the Panama Canal stationed at Empire. He has a 12 weeks' leave of absence as last year he took no vacation. He likes the work and the climate agrees with him. He got used to a warm climate in the ten years he was in the South. At one time Walter worked in the ADVERTISER office as an apprentice and before that as clerk in S. N. Buck's grocery store.

A Valuable Souvenir.

John Honey, one of the employees at the State House, has a souvenir of the Civil war that, while its intrinsic value would not be very much, could hardly be purchased of him for money. Mr. Honey was a member of the 6th Maine Vols., which after going to the front became a part of First Brigade of the Third Division of the Sixth Army Corps, and which saw plenty of fighting, and the souvenir which he has is a small diary which he had with him during that time. In this book he got many of his comrades in arms to write their names and addresses and these he carried all through the war, keeping a record, and whenever one of those whose names were in the book was wounded or killed it was recorded.

There are some pretty well known names in that book, among them being Winfield Scott Hancock, major general United States army, commanding the 2d Army Corps. Another was Gideon Clark, lieutenant colonel commanding the 119th Pennsylvania Vols., also Lieut. Col. Theo. B. Catlin of the 5th Wisconsin. Among the names of comrades from home was that of Hiram Burnham of Cherryfield, colonel of the 6th Maine Vols., Major Fuller of the same regiment, whose home was in East Corinth, and Moses J. Kelly of Liberty, chaplain of the regiment. These are but a few of the names in the book, and while perhaps they might mean but little to the average reader, they are to the owner of the book among his most cherished possessions.

Excursion rates on G. T. Ry. to Sherbrook Fair beginning Sept. 1st and up to the 14th, good returning on or before Sept. 16th. Children between 5 and 12 years of age half fare. Special train for the fair will leave Portland at 5 o'clock a. m. Thursday, Sept. 5, and will arrive at the fair at 12.25 p. m. For particulars and rates apply to station agents.

Lies We Learn in Youth.

Platitudes Fastened by a Copy Book.

The world for a great many years has accepted the dictum of the poet that—

"Of all sad words of tongue or pen,
The saddest are these: It might have been."

Even those people who refused to accept the rhyme have accepted the reason. But the fact is that the reason of this copy-book couplet is as bad as the rhyme. It would be much nearer the truth to say that of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these: He's succeeded again. Here, too, the rhyme may be questionsd but the reason is sound.

An entirely successful object is the most pitiful object in the universe. Not only has he nothing to look forward to but he has nothing to look back upon. Having no regrets, no shadows in his life, he has no picture. It is painted in the flat. "Regret," says George Moore to change the figure a little, "is like a mountain top from which we survey our dead life, a mountain top on which we pause and ponder." His life might have been a success if it had only been a failure. "It might have been" thus becomes sad when it reflects back upon itself, when it means there might have been a might have been but there was only a was. So life whirls into paradox!

Let any man in honesty retire into the solitude of his soul and reflect on his joys that might have been and those that were, and let him then answer whether any of his realizations were the equal of his anticipated but lost delights. Did he dream at twenty-one of being the perfect lover? In his words he was the perfect lover. Yet actually what was he? What was she? What was their courtship, their marriage? You, prosy, contented, forty and forgetful, by your prosy hearth or shaking down the furnace fire, while the children are being put to bed, you dare to call, "It might have been, the saddest words of mouth or pen?" Those now almost forgotten dreams of what might have been are the best you ever were. Remember them as often as you can, as bitterly, as happily, for your soul's salvation. Without them you are the lowest of God's creatures, a mere married man.

Or, take the case of Maud Muller herself, and her judge. We learn that the judge—

"Wedded a wife of richest dower
Who lived for fashion, as he for power."

Maud on the other hand—

"Wedded a man unlearned and poor.
And many children played around her door."

Probably in both cases this was for the best. Only the wildest sentimentalist could in seriousness urge that Maud would have made a good wife for the judge. Being a man who "lived for power," the probable unpresentableness of Maud in a town house would have been a constant thorn in his flesh. She could not appear barefooted at his receptions, and the feet that have gone bare through an agricultural girlhood do not readily adapt themselves to the size of shoe which urban fashion dictates.

Moreover, the vague yearnings of a young girl for an alliance with a handsome stranger above her station do not fit her to speak the speech and think the thoughts and meet the social demands of that station. No, Maud would have been a constant thorn in the judge's side. Summer sunshine, the smell of hay, a drink of cold water, a pretty, barefoot girl—the mood is compounded. An uneducated farmer's daughter for a wife—the reality is accomplished.

And as for Maud, who will say for certain that she would not eventually have eloped with the coachman because he praised her pies instead of criticising her grammar?

So to each of them—barefooted girl and bald-headed judge (he probably was bald-headed, though the poem omits to say so)—did what was best and the school children for several generations have been taught to waste unnecessary sympathy over their fate, have been inculcated with a false view of the whole matter.

Both of them found more happiness in dreaming of what might have been than ever they could have found in the realization; for each of them, this dream brought undoubted sadness, but the sadness, which is really pleasure, the sadness, that is, which comes over all of us when we realize that though we have missed certain ideals in our lives we are still able to recall those ideals, we are still not like all the dead, forgetful clods around us, our wives and husbands and neighbors and friends. We live with these people as one of them, of course, but we might have been so much better than they! Such reflections as these are a great comfort. They bring a sadness which makes us mournfully happy. They reconcile us with the scheme of things. They are the outcroppings of that secret vanity which the best and worst of us nourish, and of which is born our self-respect, our happiness, our heroism.

How well I remember my own sense of weariness and repulsion when I was compelled at a tender age of ten to copy out the whole of The Psalm of Life, unconsciously committing it to memory as I did so:

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the soul"—

My infant lips uttered the meaningless words, while my poor little brain and imagination tried to find some joy, some picture, some tangible delight, some inspiration in the mournful, oppressive poem. If I had then been assigned intelligible verses to copy, an Elizabethan lyric, a song that sang because it had to, a bit of imagery, my childish fancy would have been fired, and I would not have had to wait till I was eighteen years old before I read a single poem voluntarily. And I should not have detested the Psalm of Life all the rest of my days.

Another memory gem that I remember with a lasting grudge was

"Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood."

This I knew was false, and to be forced glibly to chatter the words before the class shamed and angered me. Had not a maiden aunt of mine after many trips to Somerset street, traced back our line to William, the Conqueror? Was there another boy or girl in the school who had descended from William, the Conqueror? No, sir! Several of them had kind hearts, and doubtless simple faith—whatever that was—but side of my Norman blood this counted for nothing. It is a vastly superior thing to have Norman blood, and as for coronets, if any child is taught to believe that they are not very fine and romantic adornments, a crime is being committed against nature. The normal child, of course, knows better, and it is by throwing at him such adult platitudes in rhyme and telling him they are poetry that he comes to regard poetry as a bore and never reads it in after life.

My memory gem book lies before me as I write, saved, I know not how, out of the wreck of boyhood. I have searched it in vain for a single quotation of lyric song, a single scrap of verse that paints the world in rosy colors and lets moral platitudes go hang, a single strain of "Celtic magic." Instead, I learn that as a boy I was taught that

"We are living, we are dwelling
In a grand and awful time."

I find at eleven years of age

"I held it truth with him who sings
To one clear harp of divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

Indeed, I must have been a very remarkable child, how remarkable I had not hitherto suspected! Evidently, too, I displayed an early tendency to melancholia, for I find I was admonished in the following words, with their incontestable statement of fact:

"Be still, sad heart, and cease repining,
Behind the clouds is the sun still shining."

Whether my sadness was caused by too much reflection on the fact that life is real, life is earnest, and the grave is not its goal, or on the fact that Bill Carter's air gun cost more than mine, I cannot now recall. Either cause would have been sufficient. At any rate, I apparently braced up and smiled once more, for the next page is blank. That means I went fishing!

Poor kiddies! Shall we grown-ups never learn that their minds won't work as ours do, and what may be poetry for some of us is cod liver oil to them? Why must we be forever nagging at them at home with "Don't do this," and "Don't do that" and forever preaching at them in school with ponderous prose platitudes cut up into lengths. How much wiser than we they are, who know that life is free and pleasant and full of melody and beautiful things, and dreams more real than the reality, and reality born of the dream! Yet we try our best to convince them that they are wrong.

But perhaps all this is changed since my day, and the nightmare this battered memory-gem book recalls to my mind is no longer a load on the children of the present. I profoundly hope so. Perhaps I shall then live to see the time when poetry is once more written—and, better yet, published.—[Bangor News.

There is an interesting report to the effect that somebody has discovered a process by which the stalk of the cotton plant, heretofore a waste product save as it may be devoted to fertilizing uses, can be converted into paper of excellent quality by the same processes that are now applied to wood pulp and other materials and with little or no modification of paper-making plants. It is estimated that general use in this way of the cotton stalk will add $100,000,000 annually to the product value of the cotton states, will put an end to the boll weevil, bring along with the paper made four or five by-products of paying value and greatly check the destruction of forests in paper making. If these claims shall be half justified by the event the discoverer will deserve to be ranked among the great benefactors of humanity.

MENDING GLASSWARE.

How to Easily Glue Together the Broken Pieces.

Because glassware, china and bric-a-brac get broken is no reason for throwing it away, for unless some of the pieces are lost they can be patched and glued together and made to look like new if one is careful to fit the edges closely together, says the Pittsburg Leader.

They should be practical for use, too, if water or liquids are not left standing in them. Clear glass is the most difficult of these to mend because it must be done so expertly to prevent the crack from showing. The best kind of glue for clear glass is made from a solution of two ounces of isinglass and half a pint of gin poured into an open mouthed bottle and set in the sun until it dissolves. It should be shaken well every day and before being used should be strained through a clean lawn cloth. When ready for the gluing the broken glass pieces should be well washed in hot suds, especially on the edges, dried, and then with a small camel's hair brush the cement should be put on the edges of both pieces, and when they are nicely fitted together rubber bands or clean strips of cloth should be bandaged tightly around them to hold the edges well together until the glue dries. If the cement has been properly made the break should really not be visible when dry, for the reason many cracks

K. of P. 15; I. O. O. F. 7.

A team of Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows crossed bats Friday afternoon at South Paris. There was a good sized crowd present. When the time came to play there were eight of the Knights present and only four of the Odd Fellows who expected to play so the remaining members were chosen from the spectators. The game proved highly entertaining. Make-up of the teams:

solder should be laid above the break and a hot iron brought down lightly on it. When the solder cools the melted rosin may be removed with a cloth dipped in alcohol.

How to Keep Bureaus Neat.

The bureau drawer, the bane of every normal woman's existence, is hard to manage. Inspired by a violent attack of neatness on a certain night, ordinarily after she has come home from the theater or evening party, she undertakes the difficult task and with superhuman efforts and energy neatly folds all her neckties in one pile, belts in another and "turnovers" in another. The next morning she arises a little later than advisable, is not oversweet tempered, makes a dash at her neat bureau drawer and in her frenzied search for her pet belt or ribbon all her work of the night before is in a state of upheaval. The proper piles have all become parts of one big blooming confusion. The first suggestion as a cure for this unsystematic arrangement is to have as few accessories as possible. Get rid of all the old neckties that are seldom worn and are simply kept for old time's sake. Then secure a collection of boxes of various sizes, each with a little lid that lifts on hinges, and in one box may be kept all that is needed of shoestrings, in another handkerchiefs, in another ties, and so on. When the owner gets used to this very inexpensive and thoroughly satisfactory arrangement, she will look with horror upon the old days when her top bureau drawer was in a state of chaos

How to Lengthen the Life of Gloves.

Too much cannot be said about the necessity for proper care in removing gloves from the hands, for upon this more than anything else depends the length of time a pair of gloves will wear, says the New York World. After unfastening the glove it should be turned back over the hand as far as the fingers and then should be pushed off without pulling on the fingers of the glove at all, as when this is done the threads of the sewing are broken and in a short time begin to rip. After the glove is off the hand the fingers should be gently straightened out, the gloves smoothed into shape and put into a box to keep them from the air as much as possible, as it is the air and the moisture in it that rot the fine thread with which a glove is sewn.

How to Treat a Crushed Finger.

A crushed finger should be plunged into water as hot as can possibly be borne. This application of hot water causes the nail to expand and soften, and the blood pouring out beneath it has more room to flow. Thus the pain is lessened. The finger should then be wrapped in a bread and water poultice. A jammed finger should never be neglected, as it may lead to mortification of the bone if it has been badly crushed.

Evolution of Wall Paper.

Wall papers were little used in Europe before the eighteenth century, though they had been long before that applied to house decoration by the Chinese. Those that were first manufactured in the west were adaptations of designs from Italian brocades, and at first they were used in an unobjectionable manner, just as hangings of the costlier material were employed—namely, to fill spaces between obvious structural lines—and so applied no objection could be made to their use. On the contrary, the invention brought it within the means of almost every householder to fill blank wall spaces with agreeable tracery and harmonious color.

The cornice, frieze and dado remained intact. Coigns were protected with molding or plaster work, and the inmate might feel that he was living in a built room and not in a bandbox. But gradually the wall features disappeared, paper crept over everything except window and door openings, even into the very angles of the walls, and it is nothing uncommon now on entering a salon of considerable pretension and proportions to find the walls closely covered with paper from floor to ceiling, save a narrow skirting board to protect the plaster from the housemaid's broom and a cornice reduced to a meager molding.—Blackwood's Magazine.

Practical Illustration of Economy.

The following interesting item is from a personal letter to the editor of the Good Roads Magazine from W. W. Crosby, chief engineer of the Maryland geological survey. As it illustrates in a practical way the economy of an improved road we take the liberty of printing the extract referred to. It serves to show the farmer what a good road really means:

Just as I opened your letter a caller from Prince George's county came in. Last year we built nearly four miles of road in three different sections of this county, one of which was on the road between Washington and Hyattsville. My caller this morning stated in the course of his conversation that a prominent resident near Hyattsville told him only the other day that, while this mile which we improved last year used to be almost the worst stretch of road between his place and the city of Washington, now whenever he sent a load of produce into the city he sent back to his farm two horses out of the team as soon as it reached the near end of our improved section. And he was now, he said, beginning to realize in a more substantial and intimate way than ever before what the improvement of the country roads according to modern methods meant to the individual farmer.

ROAD DUST REMEDY.

Sea Salt and Sea Water Used as a Cheap Method.

Consul D. I. Murphy, writing from Bordeaux, says that considerable attention has been attracted of late to the problem of combating road dust, which is not only inconvenient and unpleasant, but has been found deleterious to health.

The Medical society of Bordeaux called attention to the evils arising from this cause and the number and nature of diseases directly traceable thereto. Tar seems to have many advocates as a layer of dust, but its use has been found to have some disagreeable accompaniments. Sea salt and sea water have been proposed as cheaper and more effective remedies than tar. The idea of using sea salt seems to be based upon its well known property, especially when in large grains, of absorbing the moisture of the atmosphere. It is this property, it is claimed, that will dampen the dust and thus prevent its dissemination.

Dr. Carl, an eminent chemist of Bordeaux, exploits the merits of sea water. He mentions the fact that when salt extracted from sea water becomes damp it is because of the impurities it contains (pure salt not being hygroscopic), carbonate of magnesium and calcium being the principal impurities which provoke this liquefaction.

It has been suggested that these salts might be put into the ordinary water used for sprinkling the roads. As prepared in the laboratory, however, or as found as residuum in the factory, carbonate of magnesium and calcium have a market value which would make their general use very expensive.

Dr. Carl points out that these salts abound in sea water, from which if evaporated in great shallow trays by the rays of the sun the different salts crystallize in order of insolubility, chloride of sodium being the first to separate, while the others, more soluble, accumulate in the remaining water. A few quarts of this "mother sea water," having no value, mixed with a ton of ordinary water, Dr. Carl declares, will be found most efficacious in laying the dust and preventing its dissemination. The expense would seem to be trifling. No disagreeable odors would offend the nostrils and no deleterious effects follow its use.

In American places not far from the sea the method advocated by Dr. Carl might be found both inexpensive and beneficial.

GREAT NATIONAL HIGHWAY.

Enthusiastic Autoists Plan One Between Chicago and New York.

Dr. Gardiner S. Chapin and H. Sargent Michaels of Chicago arrived recently at New York after covering in an automobile 3,000 miles seeking a route for a national highway between Chicago and New York. They left their city on Sept. 15 and since then have been surveying roads, studying the soil of which they are composed, photographing the surrounding country, marking on their maps the location of gravel pits and quarries and gathering material for a presentation to congress of a proposition that the government place its mark of approval on and give its aid to the construction of a national highway between the two cities, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Dr. Chapin is a young man of wealth. He is an enthusiastic automobilist who does not believe in exceeding the speed limit. He is not interested in automobile races, although he is much interested in the development of the gasoline engine and the storage battery. He believes that with a highway that will furnish good traveling across half the continent the various states will then concentrate their good roads movements into providing feeders for that highway and that eventually travel by automobile will be common between distant points, and that the farms will be able to assert their independence of the railroads as gasoline and electric vehicles become cheaper and more fitted to the demands of farmers.

Dr. Chapin's trip to New York has provided him with a set of field notes so complete that he believes congress cannot fail to be interested in them. They include conditions of soil, grade percentages, location of gravel pits, stone quarries, stone deposits, suggestions for roads that will feed the main highway and much general information valuable to road construction experts.

Dr. Chapin when he has finished with his resurvey will present his maps and materials to representatives in congress and have the matter taken up in committee. When his plan has the stamp of approval of the government the agitation for a highway will be started in the state legislatures.

Problem of Waste Paper.

A solution of the waste paper problem in Los Angeles is offered by Arthur G. Graves, who has agreed to place several hundred metal receptacles in as many spots widely distributed throughout the city in which people may throw refuse product, says the Kansas City Journal. He expresses a willingness to give to the city the use of these sheet iron boxes provided the expenses of the removal of their contents be borne by the public. The waste thus accumulated it is purposed by him to convert into paper in a mill which he will build.

How to Wash China.

If china is decorated with gold it should never be washed with soap, as it has a dulling effect and after a time causes the gilt to rub off. Hot water does no harm. It is better soft, and, if no rain water be handy, it is an easy matter to boil it well, then reduce it to the proper temperature. The softer the drying cloth the better. Use it the moment the articles are out of the water. To rinse in cold water is to retard the drying. Besides, many cracks are due to the sudden plunge from hot to cold water.

Auto and Team Collide.

As Carl Brown was returning from Stoneham one night last week with his auto, he and Frank McAllister's team collided, throwing out Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and hurt them some but not badly. The wagon was broken quite badly, I understand.

George Elliott has gone away on a visit.

James Brown is so he rides out in the auto.

Mrs. Stella Hobson has returned home after a few days' visit to Norway.

Uncle John Rice attended church at Stoneham with Rev. G. P. Fuller.

The spool mill is shut down for a short time, giving all the employees a vacation.

Mrs. Henry Proctor's daughter, Mrs. Woodsum, and children of Portland are visiting her.

They are starting in here trying to organize a Grange. Think it will be a good thing and hope they may meet with success.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Farmer went on Farmer hill, Sunday, to see his father, George Farmer, who remains in very poor health.

A letter came Saturday night saying that A. B. Washburn is able to sit up now and might live a few months or a year, although his mind is badly deranged.

Bisbeetown.

Wedding bells are soon to ring here.

There has been quite a heavy frost here in some places.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Merrill have moved back to their home.

The McIntires are to entertain the Grange at their cottage, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hobson visited her parental home in Naples a few days last week.

Edith Knight is at her home, G. M. Knight's, on a short vacation, and also at her cottage some.

L. A. Flint had two more young bears come from Bethlehem. He shipped one to Buffalo, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess. Littlefield are stopping a few days at her grandparents', Mr. and Mrs. Parris Paige's.

Sylvester and Elmer York and little daughter have been visiting at their father's, John York's. His grandson, Charlie York, from New York is visiting there now.

Dr. W. J. Trefethen and family returned, Saturday, to their home in Wilton. While they were here they visited her cousin, Mrs. F. P. Stone, at Norway and went up Pike's hill in their auto, and said they had been up worse hills than that one several times in their auto.

The Maine Register, 1907-8.

It is now being delivered in this section by A. W. Wheelock of Portland and the book is just as good as it ever has been in the past.

It contains almost everything you have a right to know about the State of Maine with a good map and some advertising. There are some over one thousand pages well indexed and ready for reference.

It was the Maine Register that received the first and only award at the World's Columbian Exposition, and unquestionably it's the best of its kind in the United States.

Serious Accident.

Mrs. William Twitchell, 71 years of age and living on Fore street, met with a painful and serious accident Wednesday of last week. She was alone in the house and desiring some wood went into the shed for it. She gathered an armful of wood but in attempting to return fell backwards, breaking the right hip. Mrs. Twitchell managed to crawl the length of the shed but was unable to get into the house. Her cries for assistance brought no aid for four hours.

Mrs. Borneman, one of her neighbors, who was passing the house, heard her moans and entering the shed found her nearly exhausted and suffering intense pain. Physicians and other help were at once summoned and the woman made as comfortable as possible. At the present writing Mrs. Twitchell is suffering much pain from the broken bone and injured tissues.

EAST OTISFIELD.

Golden Rule Society Picnic.

The Golden Rule branch of the I. S. S. held a picnic in the beautiful grove by the shore of Saturday pond, last week, Tuesday.

It was an ideal day and people began to arrive early, each remarking what a lovely place for a picnic. W. F. Smith, who owns the grove, and John Cleaveland had put the grounds in excellent condition, and had Mr. Cleaveland's fine organ in place for service. The society was very grateful to them, also to D. L. Holden for the loan of his fine prepared picnic tables.

While the ladies were ladening the tables excellent music was furnished by a male quartet, with Charles Scribner as organist.

When dinner was ready the tables were dressed in their best. Beautiful bouquets of sweet peas, nasturtiums, goldenglow and sweet clover added their attractiveness.

The members wore badges, others wearing flowers of the society colors, yellow and white, casting rays of sunshine through the grove.

After dinner ice cream was served, then the afternoon was enjoyed in different ways—the children boating and swimming, etc., others chatting. Music both vocal and instrumental was enjoyed.

At the close of the afternoon's pleasure a juvenile branch was organized, called the Golden Rule Juveniles, with the following officers:

Pres.—Hartley P. Greenleaf.
V. Pres.—Verner R. Smith.
Sec.—Ruth Lamb.
Treas.—Ethel Scribner.
Relief Committee—Fred Pottle, George Smith, Clarence Smith, Joseph R. Greenleaf.

This branch numbers about 35 and are all interested in giving sunshine and cheer to all needy children.

Let us all help the children by showing more of the spirit of the Good Samaritan, thus fulfilling the golden rule from which our society was named.

Auto and Team Collide.

As Carl Brown was returning from Stoneham one night last week with his auto, he and Frank McAllister's team collided, throwing out Mr. and Mrs. McAllister and hurt them some but not badly. The wagon was broken quite badly, I understand.

George Elliott has gone away on a visit.

James Brown is so he rides out in the auto.

Mrs. Stella Hobson has returned home after a few days' visit to Norway.

Uncle John Rice attended church at Stoneham with Rev. G. P. Fuller.

The spool mill is shut down for a short time, giving all the employees a vacation.

Mrs. Henry Proctor's daughter, Mrs. Woodsum, and children of Portland are visiting her.

They are starting in here trying to organize a Grange. Think it will be a good thing and hope they may meet with success.

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Farmer went on Farmer hill, Sunday, to see his father, George Farmer, who remains in very poor health.

A letter came Saturday night saying that A. B. Washburn is able to sit up now and might live a few months or a year, although his mind is badly deranged.

Bisbeetown.

Wedding bells are soon to ring here.

There has been quite a heavy frost here in some places.

Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Merrill have moved back to their home.

The McIntires are to entertain the Grange at their cottage, Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Hobson visited her parental home in Naples a few days last week.

Edith Knight is at her home, G. M. Knight's, on a short vacation, and also at her cottage some.

L. A. Flint had two more young bears come from Bethlehem. He shipped one to Buffalo, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess. Littlefield are stopping a few days at her grandparents', Mr. and Mrs. Parris Paige's.

Sylvester and Elmer York and little daughter have been visiting at their father's, John York's. His grandson, Charlie York, from New York is visiting there now.

Dr. W. J. Trefethen and family returned, Saturday, to their home in Wilton. While they were here they visited her cousin, Mrs. F. P. Stone, at Norway and went up Pike's hill in their auto, and said they had been up worse hills than that one several times in their auto.

The Maine Register, 1907-8.

It is now being delivered in this section by A. W. Wheelock of Portland and the book is just as good as it ever has been in the past.

It contains almost everything you have a right to know about the State of Maine with a good map and some advertising. There are some over one thousand pages well indexed and ready for reference.

It was the Maine Register that received the first and only award at the World's Columbian Exposition, and unquestionably it's the best of its kind in the United States.

Published by G. M. Donham, Portland, Me., and sent postage prepaid for $2.

Golden Rule Society Picnic.

The Golden Rule branch of the I. S. S. held a picnic in the beautiful grove by the shore of Saturday pond, last week, Tuesday.

It was an ideal day and people began to arrive early, each remarking what a lovely place for a picnic. W. F. Smith, who owns the grove, and John Cleaveland had put the grounds in excellent condition, and had Mr. Cleaveland's fine organ in place for service. The society was very grateful to them, also to D. L. Holden for the loan of his fine prepared picnic tables.

While the ladies were ladening the tables excellent music was furnished by a male quartet, with Charles Scribner as organist.

When dinner was ready the tables were dressed in their best. Beautiful bouquets of sweet peas, nasturtiums, goldenglow and sweet clover added their attractiveness.

The members wore badges, others wearing flowers of the society colors, yellow and white, casting rays of sunshine through the grove.

After dinner ice cream was served, then the afternoon was enjoyed in different ways—the children boating and swimming, etc., others chatting. Music both vocal and instrumental was enjoyed.

At the close of the afternoon's pleasure a juvenile branch was organized, called the Golden Rule Juveniles, with the following officers:

Pres.—Hartley P. Greenleaf.
V. Pres.—Verner R. Smith.
Sec.—Ruth Lamb.
Treas.—Ethel Scribner.
Relief Committee—Fred Pottle, George Smith, Clarence Smith, Joseph R. Greenleaf.

This branch numbers about 35 and are all interested in giving sunshine and cheer to all needy children.

Let us all help the children by showing more of the spirit of the Good Samaritan, thus fulfilling the golden rule from which our society was named.

All services will be resumed at the Congregational church, next Sunday, Sept. 8, at the usual hour. All teachers in the Sunday school are requested to look up their scholars as far as possible and invite strangers.

The ladies of the Congregational society have decided to serve meals at their dining rooms at the Fair grounds during the fair. Of late years they have served 35 cent dinners but this year it is their intention to serve 25 cent ones.

The remains of Mrs. Charles Carpenter of Providence, R. I., were brought here, Wednesday, for burial in Pine Grove Cemetary. Mrs. Carpenter was the guest of Mrs. F. W. Faunce and Mrs. Lucius Bartlett, and was 57 years, 2 months and 2 days of age.

C. F. Richardson of Montreal, manager of the Canadian Express, visited his niece, Mrs. E. N. Swett, and called on Express Agent George L. Curtis, this week. Mr. Richardson is one of the oldest employees, in point of service, of the company, having been in their employ for 40 years.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Noyes of Roslindale, Mass., and their son, Walter, with his wife and daughter of Brookline came to Norway, Friday, in their steam touring car, returning home on Saturday. They stopped at T. L. Heath's. Walter is a successful lumber dealer with headquarters at Boston.

Monday evening, six Norway men went to Bridgton and took the Knights Templar Masonic degree. They were H. B. Young, P. S. Walker, Frank Mann, L. H. Cushman, W. C. Brown and F. A. Cole. Others who visited were S. J. Records, H. F. Andrews, George A. Cole, Norway, Fred Sanborn and Walter L. Gray, South Paris.

Rufus Morrill started for Lewiston on Wednesday to attend the State fair. He drove with his big horses and a heavy work wagon. He was driving down Main street behind Simeon Yeaton who also had a heavy team. Just below S. J. Records blacksmith shop one of the horses became frightened at the electric car, jumped onto Yeaton's wagon and danced about considerably. The harness was broken and some other slight damage done but fortunately nothing was seriously damaged. There was however quite an excitement for a few minutes.
